New regulations for credit reporting

Great news for consumers! The Consumer Data Industry Association announced in March there would be new regulations for credit reporting. As of July 1, a person's full name, address, and social security number or date of birth, must match for anything to count for or against them. Ever get confused for your cousin? Is there another Andy Johnson out there? They won't be messing with your credit score anymore! So some consumers may see their credit scores begin to rise.

How to check your credit report

Anchor Bank recommends checking annualcreditreport.com. Federal law allows you to get a free copy of your credit report every 12 months from each of the three credit reporting companies. Anchor Bank recommends you review all the information on your credit reports for accuracy. Visit annualcreditreport.com to obtain your free credit reports.
